"A Universe of Stories"

2019 Adult Summer Reading Challenge

Read a modern science fiction novel.	Talk with someone about your or their memories of the first moon landing.	Learn about the life of an astronaut.	Go to our AtoZ Maps database and check out a NASA map.	Read a book with a space-themed word in the title.
Eat some dehydrated food (or actual astronaut food if you can find it).	Rearrange or alter the space around you.	Read a book that starts with the letter "S."	Come to a library event.	Create (or draw, color, etc.) something relating to space.
Watch a science documentary.	Read a book that starts with the letter "R."	☆ Go to Space ☆ (Just kidding. This is a free square.) ☆	Read a book that starts with the letter "T."	Read a classic science fiction novel.
Come to a library event.	In this universe of stories, read the memoir of someone you've never heard of before.	Read a book that starts with the letter "A."	Make space in your home with some summer cleaning.	Go online to NASA.gov and explore the site.
Go outside and identify at least one constellation.	Wear something related to space.	Read a nonfiction book about space.	Learn some facts about space.	Watch a movie or show set in space.

This contest is open to anyone who registers for and logs at least one book in our Adult Summer Reading Program. If you wish to participate, you may return this card to the library with your name and phone number by August 24 at 5 p.m. to be eligible for the prize. (Note: Each book or activity may only be used for one Bingo square apiece.)
